Lauren's Letter

Happy New Year delegates! With the end of one year and the beginning of another comes a time to reflect on what we've accomplished, and look ahead towards what is still to come.

This past fall we were able to raise $$$ dollars through our Mixed Bags to benefit our organization. The delegates and their alumnae chapters did a great job spreading the word about this fundraiser. We officially raised more money than last year.

At the November meeting, we collected items for Next Step. We filled a van full of donations and collected additional gift-cards and money to benefit this organization. I am so proud to be associated with such philanthropic and kind-hearted women.

On the horizon in 2017, we have a lot of exciting events to look forward to. We have our Panhellenic Happy Hour coming up at the end of January. I encourage you to spread the word and bring a sister who hasn't yet had the chance to experience a Panhellenic event.

In February, we have the opportunity to volunteer together as a united sisterhood at the Greater Cleveland Food Bank. I encourage you to spread the word and register today. By coming together to give back, we can maximize the impact on those in need around us.

When spring rolls around, look forward to the annual Scholarship Luncheon. The May date will bring collegiate and alumnae together to enjoy good food, fun, and conversation. Look for more exciting details to come. I hope you have had a great start to your new year and I wish you the best as 2017 continues. I look forward to seeing you at our upcoming events.

Lauren

Sorority Spotlight

Alpha Kappa Alpha - Celebrating 109th Founders' Day as local chapter celebrates 100th anniversary

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Incorporated's (AKA) International President Dorothy Buchanan Wilson, L.H.D., spoke at the City Club of Cleveland, on January 13, 2017, moderated by Margot James Copeland, Chair and CEO of the KeyBank Foundation.

The sorority was celebrating its 109th Founders Day. Founded on January 15, 1908, at Howard University, Washington, D.C., as the first African American sorority, Wilson emphasized Alpha Kappa Alpha's long-term dedication to philanthropy and service to the community.

She highlighted contributions of African American women to U.S. society via books and stories, citing as an example the popular film, HIDDEN FIGURES, in which all three main characters belonged to AKA. "There are stories, she added, that have not yet been told. We work as volunteers and can see where we and other women are making an impact."

"When we leave college, we embark upon a lifelong commitment," Wilson stated. "The day we go in [to AKA] we are told that after graduating, sorority members go into graduate chapters. We're told that we can make an impact that maybe our mothers and grandmothers didn't have a chance to do."

With more than 290,000 members and 1,005 local chapters, AKA states its mission as education and service to communities. Wherever conventions and anniversaries are held, Wilson said, service efforts are presented. At its convention in Atlanta, for example, a children's playground complete with equipment was installed as part of its AKA 1908 Playground Project.

Ms. Wilson noted that while in town, she would participate in Case Western Reserve University's Centennial Celebration of AKA. More than 300 members, including some attending the City Club venue, would gather to celebrate 100 years of service to Cleveland

College Panhellenic Corner

NPC hosted the second annual College Panhellenic Academy for Panhellenic officers Jan. 22–23, 2016, in Indianapolis. Representatives from 73 College Panhellenics participated in the program. In its second year, attendance increased by 43 officers, and NPC provided a newly created track for communications/public relations officers.

All attendees received the opportunity to gain a better understanding of NPC Unanimous Agreements and governing documents, learn from the stories of sorority and fraternity alumni, hear the sorority story of the NPC chairman, network with peer officers and campuses, and learn more about NPC initiatives. The new track for communications/public relations officers worked through the strategic plan focus of educational support to achieve the goal of building a corps of brand ambassadors. The 37 women attending the new track learned:

- How best to perform the role of a College Panhellenic communications/public relations officer.
- NPC communications/public relations terminology.
- NPC policies and best practices related to the role of a College Panhellenic communications/ public relations officer.
- What it means to be a brand ambassador.
- How to share the NPC brand.
